

ANALYSIS OF DETERMINISTIC SYSTEMS

KYEWON KOH PARK (AJOU UNIV, KOREA)

ABSTRACT. In the study of actions of  $\mathbb{Z}^2$  and more general group actions, it is known that deterministic systems have interesting properties including their subgroup actions. We introduce the notion of entropy dimension to measure the "complexity" of deterministic systems. We exhibit an example of any given entropy dimension and study their behaviors.